Yes.Â You will need to select a hosting package that includes at least one MySQL database, as all major blogging software requires this. All of our hosting packages include PHP and Perl, the two most common programming languages used for blogging software. We also have a range of one-click software installations that include blogging applications, such as WordPress, Geeklog, Textpattern, Nucleus, and b2evolution.Â You can access these via your eXtend Control Panel under CGI Scripts.Â Click on the software you wish to install, select the directory to install it into, and follow the instructions given.
