Can each one of my hosting accounts be on a separate IP address?

IPv4 addresses are in global short supply, and Heart Internet must justify every IP address we use to RIPE Network Coordination Centre, the Regional Internet Registry that controls IP address allocation. Shared hosting is widely accepted, and having the same IP address as several other sites does not affect the performance of your site, or have a significant effect on your search engine rankings. If you still believe that you would benefit from having separate IP addresses for each of your accounts, please look into our server packages, such as VPS or Dedicated Servers.
